Newspaper States Injuries Worse Than Reported

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP)—An anti-government newspaper reported today that the assassination attempt on Prime Minister Hendrik Verwoerd may have injured the government chief much more severely than his doctors have admitted.

Johannesburg's Rand Daily Mail, one of the leading opponents of Verwoerd's racial policies, said the two bullets which struck the Prime Minister in the head "may have caused damage which could impair his speech, his sense of balance, his hearing and possibly his mental state for some time."

Long Time Recovering

In any case, said the paper, Verwoerd is likely to be "a long time recovering."

Medical bulletins today said the Prime Minister spent a restful night and was in satisfactory condition.

There was no immediate official or medical reaction to the newspaper report.

Stronger security guards were assigned government ministers, as leaders of the ruling National party met to discuss who would take over the reins of government as acting prime minister.

Nationalist newspaper indicated the shooting of the prime minister by a wealthy British-born farmer Saturday would bring no modification of the government's racial policy.

Spared For Special Task

Johannesburg's Die Transvaler said Verwoerd's escape from death was a sign that God had spared him for a "very special task"—presumably to carry on with his segregation program.

London newspapers predicted Verwoerd's racial policy would be enforced more strenuously. Some expressed fears the shooting would heighten tension between the National party's Dutch-descended Afrikaner supporters and South Africans of British origin. A medical bulletin this morning said Verwoerd "had a restful night and is making satisfactory progress. He is as well as could be reasonably expected. There have been no further developments."

An earlier bulletin said surgeons had decided that an operation to remove two .22 caliber bullets still lodged in his head was not immediately necessary.

The Cabinet is expected to name an acting prime minister until the 38-year-old champion of white supremacy recovers. Lands Minister Paul Oliver Sauer appeared a likely choice.

Verwoerd is expected to be laid up at least six weeks, and it ap

British Papers Hit Boycott of Meg's Nuptials

LONDON (AP)—Some British newspapers say European royalty is boycotting Princess Margaret's wedding, and the papers don't like it.

The Daily Herald said so far Queen Ingrid of Denmark had sent the only royal acceptance. The Danish court said King Frederik IX had another engagement that conflicted with the May 6 ceremony.

"I come regretfully to the conclusion that the royal houses of Europe are boycotting Princess Margaret for reasons other than mere inconvenience, prior engagements or even protocol," said Herald columnist Henry Fielding. Irrked at rumors that Scandinavia's royalty were not going to the wedding because Margaret's fiancé, Antony Armstrong-Jones, is a commoner, the London Daily Express thundered: "The haughtiness of the Scandinavians merely rouses laughter. If they do not come to the wedding, they will not be missed."

A spokesman for Norway's royal family called any suggestion of a boycott "sheer nonsense." King Olav's daughter, Princess Ragnhild, is happily married to a commoner — a Norwegian ship owner.

Kennedy Opens W. Virginia Bid

Humphrey Continues Campaign for Votes

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (AP)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) and Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) both are campaigning in southern West Virginia's coal fields today but they aren't likely to bump into each other.

Kennedy's only stop in the southern fields will be an evening speech at Beckley. Humphrey planned to spend his time in half a dozen southern towns. Beckley wasn't one of them.

It is Kennedy's first serious campaigning for the state's May 10 Democratic presidential primary. Humphrey spent all Friday and Saturday in the state and came back Sunday to appear on a television show.

The primary will not bind any of West Virginia's 25 votes at the Democratic National Convention.

Kennedy planned to fly into the Ohio River city of Parkersburg in time for a coffee session and rally before flying south to the capital of Charleston, motoring to Huntington, and then flying on to Beckley.

Humphrey scheduled an early departure from Charleston in his chartered bus for stops at Logan, Welch and Bluefield and the smaller towns of Man, Oceana and Pineville.

The Minnesota senator, in his television interview Sunday night, said pictures of some conditions in West Virginia "would make American democracy look pretty sick."

Humphrey referred to the Cabin Creek area about 25 miles southeast of Charleston, where the closing of coal mines has left many unemployed and families are just getting by on free food from the government.

In Washington Sen. Robert C. Byrd (D-W.Va.) said he is trying to make voters in his state aware of the election's national significance. "I imagine if Sen. Kennedy were to win West Virginia, he would be very likely to get the nomination," Byrd said.

at St. Aloysius where she is an eighth grader was Susan Shepherd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Shepherd, 611 Harrison St., Newell. Capturing the runnerup spot was Victoria Desenze, a sixth grade student at Immaculate Conception.

Miss Shepherd defeated 11 other contestants from St. Aloysius, Immaculate Conception, Our Lady of Lourdes School in East Palestine and St. Patrick's of Leetonia to win the championship.

With only two remaining in the contest, Miss Desenze forgot the "u" in executive and Miss Shepherd spelled it correctly and then ended the bee by spelling secretary.

Finishing third was Michele Riles of St. Patrick's who got through synonym correctly only to tack an "n" on the end of it. The bee ended four words after Miss Riles was eliminated.

Ann Hocking of St. Aloysius, who won the parochial title a year ago as a fifth grader and represented the county parochial schools in the district bee at Canton, finished fourth this year, misspelling percolator.

Thomas Troy of Leetonia was eliminated earlier on the word chauffeur and Robert Macchione, also of Leetonia, spelled too quickly and missed squirrel.

Pauley Denies Trying to Hurt Dems' Drive

Questioned Legality Of Methods Used To Raise Money

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Oilman Edwin W. Pauley said today he had questioned legality of fund-raising efforts for the Democratic National Convention. But he denied a published report he was trying to hurt those efforts.

Pauley said he wrote a letter to that effect but sent it to an attorney, not to prospective contributors.

His statements were touched off by a Washington dispatch by Earl Mazo, New York Herald Tribune news service correspondent. Mazo wrote that Pauley has been warning potential convention fund donors that any donations may be in violation of income tax and corrupt practices laws.

Convention Finance Committee Chairman Mark Boyar said the committee has raised $300,000 of the $450,000 needed and anticipates no difficulty getting the rest.

Got Treasury Ruling

"We got a ruling (from the Treasury department) that it's tax deductible as a nonprofit enterprise," Boyar said. "It's hard for me to believe Mr. Pauley would do anything like this. He's a good Democrat and he's responsible for bringing the convention here."

Pauley resigned last fall as chairman of the convention host committee after losing a battle with Paul Butler, Democratic national chairman, over allocation of convention tickets.

Pauley confirmed he had written the letter attributed to him by the Herald-Tribune, but he denied any knowledge that it was sent to potential convention donors.

Wanted To Get Ruling

"They were asking me and companies I'm affiliated with for a contribution and I wanted to get a ruling on it," Pauley said.

Pauley's letter said the Internal Revenue Service requires money must be used for the convention and subscribed to by people who directly benefit from the convention. He said he was sure that was not being done.

He added that if contribu-

Medical Aid Plan Pushed By Democrats

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic leaders were reported to have terminated today to get congressional action in this session on a program to provide health assistance for the elderly.

Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.) and Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas were said to be working on a compromise plan which would provide federal assistance for hospitalization, nursing home care and possibly some other benefits for those over 65.

Whether this would be linked to the Social Security System or handled through a separate agency apparently has not been determined. In any event it seems likely to be offered in a form that would avoid a "socialized medicine" tag.

Hospitalization and nursing home care were said to account for about 80 percent of the health expenditures for the elderly. Because of this, Rayburn and Johnson were reported giving this part of the field their immediate attention.

President Eisenhower has ordered a study of proposals for health, hospital and medical care for the elderly. Although Vice President Richard M. Nixon obviously wants action in this session, there is doubt the administration will offer any concrete plan.

Eight GOP senators have offered a program for federal-state subsidies to pay the cost of private health insurance for persons over 65 unable to afford it. They have not yet obtained administration support.

Rayburn and Johnson apparently aim to try to show that the Democratic-controlled Congress is willing to act in this situation where the President is not.

Two Hospitalized With Car Injuries

A North Jackson girl and a Salem man are recuperating in Salem City Hospital after suffering injuries in an auto accident in Youngstown Saturday at 5:30 p.m.

Injured were Barbara Ripley, 18, in fairly good condition, and Richard Linger, 20, of 791 Prospect St. Both sustained neck injuries.

Canfield state highway patrolmen said Linger's car was struck in the rear by an auto driven by Margaret Cerni, 43, Poland, when Linger reduced speed for traffic ahead of him on Rt. 7, four miles south of Youngstown. Miss Ripley was a passenger in Linger's car.

Dead Man's Brother Disputes Story

Miss Aadland's Latest Boyfriend Kills Self

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Death of the story of William (Billy) the Kid Stanciu, latest boyfriend in the tempestuous life of Beverly Aadland, 17, the day he became 21. Miss Aadland, the late Errol Flynn's last flame, herself narrowly escaped death when the muscular would-be actor fired a fatal bullet into his head, she said.

She told police Stanciu forced his way into her apartment Saturday, raped her at gunpoint, threatened to kill her, then sobbed, "I love you too much. I can't kill you"—and shot himself. He died Sunday in a hospital prison ward.

Stanciu had been booked on suspicion of rape. Police listed his death as suicide and said they have no immediate plans for an inquest. An autopsy is pending.

Beverly said he asked her to marry him and she refused.

"He told me that I had ruined his life—that he loved me, but I didn't love him, and he was going to kill me," she said.

"That's a pack of lies," asserted Stanciu's brother, Kenneth, 22, another aspiring actor. "Beverly asked Billy to marry her a few weeks ago."

He asked: "Why would Billy want to rape her? He and Beverly have been going together every night for six weeks. Everybody in town knows that."

He said he was certain his brother wouldn't kill himself—"he wasn't that kind of guy. He had everything to live for."

The dead man, son of Romanian immigrants, had a juvenile arrest record. Police found him lying nearly nude in Beverly's apartment.

Beverly, a slender platinum blonde, was held in Juvenile Hall.

3 Women Hurt In Crash Near Columbiana

Rash of Mishaps Keeps Patrol Busy On Investigations

A rash of traffic accidents on Columbiana County highways Saturday resulted in injuries to four persons, State Highway Patrolmen report.

Three of those injured were involved in the same accident. They were Mrs. Florence Spellman, 61, of Columbiana, driver of one car, Jean Koch, 31, of New Waterford, driver of the other, and a passenger in the Koch auto, Elsie McConnell, 32, of New Waterford.

Patrolmen said Elsie McConnell suffered severe cuts to the mouth, right cheek and forehead and a jaw injury when the car in which she was riding collided with the Spellman car while Mrs. Spellman was making a left turn on Rt. 14, about two miles east of Columbiana at 4:15 p.m.

Mrs. Spellman suffered a cut nose and abrasions of the knees, and Jean Koch, cuts of the knee and upper lip. All three were treated at Salem City Hospital. Mrs. Spellman was charged with making an improper left turn.

Mrs. McConnell was transferred to Providence Hospital at Beaver Falls for further treatment Sunday, Collide Near Lisbon

The other injury accident involved Frederick Bell, 31, of 162 W. Pershing St., Salem, and Richard Gween, 31, of Lisbon. Patrolmen said Bell was treated at Salem City Hospital for bruises of the leg and thigh after his car and Gween's hit head on Rt. 45, one mile north of Lisbon at 9:30 p.m. Gween was charged with driving left of center, patrolmen said.

Two other drivers, Milton Winkler, 44, of Eastlake, and Gary Jackson, 21, East Liverpool, were charged after two-car accidents.

Winkler was involved in an accident with a car driven by Johnny Jenkins, 39, of Alliance on Rt. 14, five miles east of Columbiana, at 2:50 p.m. Patrolmen said he was charged with failure to stop in the assured clear distance after he hit the rear of Jenkins' car when Jenkins reduced speed in traffic.

Jackson was charged with failure to yield the right-of-way after his car and one driven by George Serago, 35, Lisbon, collided on Rt. 30, a half-mile north of East Liverpool. Patrolmen said Jackson

High School Class Touring Europe

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP)—A typical American high school class is doing Europe on a $20,000 budget and having a great time. The class members certainly earned it, because they worked hard for every dollar of the travel money.

The class of 34 seniors from New Albany High School in Ohio arrived Sunday in Sweden, the goal they set six years ago when the unusual idea first was formed.

Beside trying the famed smorgasbord first hand in its home country, shopping and sightseeing, the 34 youths are doing serious studying. The school term is still on back home, but school authorities made an exception for the class to go, recognizing initiative.

The results of meeting with Swedish and other European youths will be the subject of themes to be turned in before graduation.

The 34 out of New Albany High saved, skimped and eked out their budget with unflinching energy. The youths, average age of about 17, have 13 days for their European tour by bus through Germany, Denmark and Sweden.

They will stay here with private families. Tuesday they will meet Prime Minister Tage Erlander.

Student Near Death With Boxing Injury

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Intercollegiate boxing, a target of sniping attacks by bitter opponents for many years, faced a rocky future today as a 22-year-old University of Wisconsin senior lay near death with a brain injury suffered in a national championship bout.

A dwindling crops of college boxing supporters braced for an expected renewal of demands for abolishment of the sport while Charlie Mohr of Merrick, N.Y., battled for his life in the University of Wisconsin Hospitals.

Mohr, a 1959 champion kayaker in defense of his title by Stu Bartell of San Jose State Saturday night, was reported in critical condition after emergency surgery for a brain hemorrhage.

The injury stunned officials, coaches and fighters from 17 colleges in the three-day 23rd annual National Collegiate Athletic Assn. tournament at the Wisconsin fieldhouse.

"It makes me sick," said Coach Julie Menendez of San Jose State's team champions. "I didn't think Stu hit him that hard."

"This is ironic as Charlie was symbolic of all that is fine in college boxing," said Wisconsin's distraught Coach Vern Woodward. "He was a terrific boxer who seldom got hit."

Under constant fire by opponents, the sport has dwindled in colleges in virtually every section of the country except the Far West. Only a handful of the 60 entrants, with the exception of host Wisconsin, represented schools east of the Rockies.

Just a year ago, a 19-year-old Texas A & M sophomore, Curtis Raymond Lyons, died from injuries suffered in a fight with Fred White of Sam Houston College.

GOOD SHOES

For Small Apartment Furniture...

Answer Is Simplicity of Pieces

One of your main concerns if you're starting out in a small apartment is choosing things that aren't going to be dead ends by the time you're ready for that house in the suburbs.

That's where simplicity and practicality of furniture design come in. If every piece has more than one use—more than one right now—it can be adapted to others later on.

In a new line of furniture designed by Marc Berge, no piece shouts "bedroom" or "living room" at you. They literally wait for you to decide what they are to be.

For instance, a two-drawer chest can not only serve as a blanket chest or a bench at the foot of the daybed, but it can roll around on its Shepherd casters and be used as a cocktail table in front of a sofa. Or it can be pushed against the wall to act as an end table. Of rich walnut grain, it may be ordered with or without a white laminated plastic top.

In fact, the key word in connection with this new furniture is the word "ordered," for any piece may be had in so many different ways—to order.

A young couple with an eye to the future as well as the present, can sit down with their dealer or decorator and work out from the hundreds of pieces, finishes and colors, a plan which just suits them.

They may decide they need a certain amount of storage space—so many drawers, cupboards, bookshelves or what not. From showroom samples and a chart of sizes and designs, they can plan to fit their needs, wall space and pocketbook. They can add other units later if they wish. Extra drawers can be stacked on top or additional bookshelves and cabinets may be obtained with doors or open shelves.

All doors are hinged gatefold-style to conserve space, and homeowners can choose between plain walnut panels or the three-dimensional triangular fingertip pulls. For a different effect, doors also come in woven cane.

Versatility isn't confined to storage pieces alone. An exceptionally smart daybed on a wall-rolling platform has an upholstered headboard which attaches to the wall—the headboard may also be made wide enough for the bed to be turned lengthwise like a sofa.

To add sparkle to a room with a flash of color, any of the pieces which come in walnut can be had in a decorator lacquer color if desired.

Is having your furniture tailored just for you expensive? The answer, according to its designer, is that you can have all this for just what it might cost you to buy upper quality but noncustom furniture in any store.

This is possible because of the unique Grosfeld House system of cutting and storing the component parts of the Marc Berge furniture, ready for making up to your own special prescription.

In furnishing their homes today, more and more people want something which isn't just like his neighbor's, and this new line of furniture can provide this difference.

Hi-Fi Music System Adds Room Interest

The component high fidelity music system—once the villain in many a housewife's decor scheme—today is playing the hero role.

For its new part the high fidelity system got a face lifting. According to the Institute of High Fidelity Manufacturers, components are being designed more compactly and speaker systems are being combined so that they take less space. This is significant in the stereophonic high fidelity age.

In contrast to monaural sound which involves only one channel, stereo high fidelity sound involves recording and reproducing a performance on two separate channels. Basically, stereo disks and tapes are made by placing separate microphone systems in front of the right and left sides of the orchestra. Reproduction of the sound requires two amplifier-loud speaker systems.

Architects say that the average American today has a living room one foot lower and three feet smaller in each direction than was common in his parents' time. Component sets therefore are being designed to be more adaptable than ever before to the smaller living space available today.

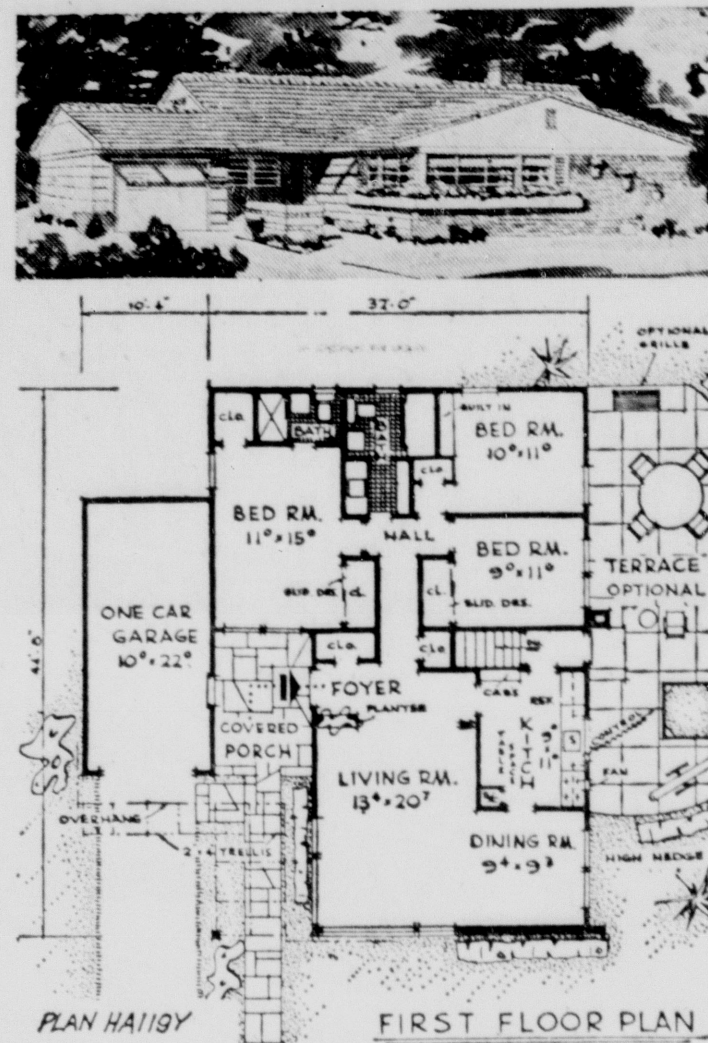

In addition to being made more compact, components have been restyled to be more attractive to the eye. Panels and controls have been made more decorative. New finishes are being used which are versatile enough to blend with a variety of decor schemes.

In the past components were manufactured with a single purpose in mind—to reproduce sound as faithfully as possible. Today more than 90 per cent of the high fidelity manufacturers employ stylists to design their components so that they will be as appealing to the eye as to the ear. The current theme of the industry is "decorate your home with music."

Components lend themselves to a number of decor ideas. Among the more common are housing them in bookcases, cupboards and on wall shelves. Bookcases are excellent for high fidelity systems. In addition to giving the wall more life, the added weight that the books provide enhance the performance of the loudspeakers.

Another idea is to rebuild an existing piece of furniture to house the system. That way the housing matches your furniture scheme. The average piece that is easily converted is usually a piece designed for dining rooms. The types most commonly used are Dutch "dry sinks," bread-fronts, credenzas and sideboards. The homeowner is restricted only by her imagination when she decides to decorate her home with high fidelity music.

Rayon Makes Big Strides In Carpeting

There's no denying that color and style trends are deciding factors in the choice of furnishings. When it comes to carpeting, however, a realistic understanding of functional features is essential. Wear life, ease of cleaning and investment value in this area are every bit as important as decorative appearance.

It is imperative to understand which fibers offer the best combination of wanted characteristics, especially these days where new names and claims are apt to cause confusion.

First of all, it should be remembered that all fibers, whether natural such as wool or man-made such as rayon, have desirable characteristics for special uses. By the same token, no one fiber offers all the answers for any application. It is a good idea, therefore, to specify fibers which have a record of performance in a particular use.

The development work done to refine and improve fibers rarely attracts as much attention as the introduction of a brand new textile component, but it is actually of greater significance to the homeowner who cares about proved value.

The story of rayon is a case in point. Being the oldest and most widely used man-made fiber, rayon has become a household word so familiar that we assume we know all about it. This can be most misleading, however. Actually, rayon as used today has come a long way since it made its debut in this country in 1910.

In carpeting, rayon developments are particularly significant. Whereas once rayon was most suitable for scatter rugs or floor coverings selected primarily for color clarity and economy, there is today a special smooth rayon fiber engineered specifically for durable and soil-resistant carpets. One of the family of Avisco fibers, this smooth rayon is used in carpeting identified by the name Super L, and is used by leading carpet mills in 100 per cent constructions as well as in approved blend combinations.

These carpets are made with rayon which has built-in strength and wear life, and which is made with smooth surfaces that shed rather than harbor dirt. Resiliency, once a potential problem in rayon carpets, is assured through low-pile textured constructions, usually preferred for their good looks and easy upkeep. The faithful color reproductions and moderate prices attainable with rayon are still in evidence.

Since fiber blends have a definite place in carpeting, it sometimes becomes difficult for the homeowner to remember which proportions are approved for best performance. One safe rule is to check percentages, since an obviously minute quantity of any fiber will make a correspondingly small contribution of its characteristics.

To help the shopper who is not a textile expert spot approved blends, the manufacturer of the long-wearing and soil-shedding carpet rayon is sponsoring a quality control program which identifies properly constructed Super L floor coverings with the Avisco Integrity Tag. Wherever this cone-shaped label appears, extensive testing and retesting have preceded the introduction of the merchandise.

Disappearing Carpet?
Don't be timid about vacuum cleaning a new carpet. You may notice some "fluffing" or "shedding" but your new carpet is not disappearing! Regular cleaning will soon remove these loose bits of pile material and, of course, a regular care plan will keep your carpet looking its best always.

Carpet Color
In choosing a carpet color, decide first whether you need a warm or cool color. The warm colors—such as red, yellow, orange—tend to make a room seem smaller and cozier. Cool colors, such as blue and green, have the opposite effect and may be used for giving the effect of added space and light in a room.

There Are Custom Floors for All

The custom-designed floor once a dream of luxury, today is well within the scope of the average homeowner.

Both rubber and solid vinyl flooring are available in such a variety of pre-cut curved and linear shapes, feature strips and borders that the distinction of the flooring design need be limited only by the designer's ingenuity.

Since both resilient rubber and solid vinyl are easy to cut in special shapes, it is practical for the do-it-yourself to create special designs to illustrate his hobby.

Unlimited scope for originality and elegance is made possible by the new styles, colors and shapes available in these aristocratic flooring materials, according to C. P. McFadden, chairman of the Rubber and Vinyl Flooring Council.

The term "solid vinyl" is a generic description of top quality vinyl flooring which, like rubber flooring, has colors that go all the way through. Both rubber and solid vinyl are noise-absorbent.

Such traditional flooring materials as marble, parquet wood, etc., new have counterparts in rubber and solid vinyl designs which deceive the eye completely. New colors cover more than a thousand hues. Floors paved with gold become a "reality" with new solid vinyl metallic styles that sparkle in gold and silver.

A variety of insets in complementary colors or brass and imaginative accent motifs provide broad new opportunities for decorators who wish to create unique floors.

And if all that variety isn't enough, custom style flooring is available, too. Any coloration of pattern in paper or fabric can be duplicated for the floor. For example, roses for the floor may be ordered to exactly match the motif of the curtains.

Light-colored floors are top volume favorites for both rubber and solid vinyl because easy cleaning makes it practical to maintain even pure white or the most delicate pastel tiles.

(asked of 'Jeep' vehicle owners)

Sam Brysen, Mechanic

No! Definitely no! 'Jeep' vehicles do a man-sized job and should be driven only by men. Women don't even understand what 4-wheel drive means, so how can you expect them to operate a vehicle that's engineered for 4-wheel drive from the ground up?

Myra Slade, Farm Wife

What a question! I drive a 'Jeep' Universal every day. I cross some rough countryside, and I'd sure hate to be stuck without 4-wheel drive! Anyway, women are more careful drivers than men.

Cliff Tanzer, Salesman

I believe in live and let live. Women could never appreciate 'Jeep' vehicles the way men do—what do they care about the low initial cost or the high resale value? But why not let women in on the pleasure of real driving? After all, it's a free country.

Well, folks, we don't want to start a battle of the sexes! Why don't you all just drop in to our showroom for a free demonstration of 'Jeep' vehicles today—and form your own opinion? (Ladies invited!)

Come on Pravda, Shoot the Works

We are having our confidential agents look up the address of the Russian newspaper, Pravda, so we can send a clipping of our favorite publicity gag picture of 1960.

It shows a typically toothsome secretary from General Motors sitting on top of the symbolic GM empire—a huge stack of annual reports now being sent to the corporation's more than 800,000 shareholders. This is the largest total of shareholders of any industrial corporation in the world.

The reports, if you haven't seen the picture, are arranged to resemble the corporation's headquarters in Detroit. As publicity gag pictures go, this one is a beaut. It tells the story.

If Pravda would publish it, many Russians who never heard the story would get it in one visual jolt. This is what we're talking about in the United States when we say "people's capitalism." Both directly and indirectly, the tools of production in the United States are moving into the ownership of the people, themselves, instead of into the ownership of a ruling aristocracy of politicians, the way it has turned out in Russia.

THE BEFUDDLED preceptor of Communism, Karl Marx, never imagined such a turn of events. From where he saw things in his lifetime, capitalism was stumbling into oblivion and would be pushed over the brink at the last minute by the wealth-producing workers, who thereupon would own and boss everything in the name of proletarianism.

Marx was on the right track, but he was chugging in the wrong direction. Wealth-producing U.S. workers are bossing everything, and given enough time they may own everything. But they aren't the ragged proletarians Marx knew. They are the wage earners of the United States—men and women who look you in the eye and want to tell you how their kids are getting along in college, or maybe swap smoking hot opinions about those unmentionables lousing up the unprintable government.

This is a constant embarrassment to socialists of all hues. It puts them to shame. While they have been talking about how much they love the common man, common men in the United States have been living higher on the hog year by year thanks to the system of enlightened selfishness that has come into existence here.

IT MAKES even mild British socialists hot under the collar to be reminded of this, and it would make the doctrinaire Russian socialists—the Communists—sizzle like a panful of wienies at a cook-out. The catch is the Communists won't admit that any such thing is happening because their government refuses to let them know about it.

That's why we want to get in touch with Pravda. If a picture is worth a thousand words, here's one that speaks volumes. And General Motors is only a sample of people's capitalism in action, like that pretty secretary is only a sample of a career woman.

Who Goes There, Senior Citizen?

In the latest ruckus that has flared up over proposals for helping us to take care of the problems of existence, all parties in contention are throwing around a phrase as if they knew exactly what it meant.

"Senior citizens," they are saying, must be given this or that benefit or must not be given this or that benefit, depending on their point of view.

This is some of the loosest language since Franklin D. Roosevelt set the country on its ear by declaring that one-third of the nation was "ill-fed, ill-clothed and ill-housed."

What happened thereafter may have a lesson in it for some of the people talking about "senior citizens." In a matter of a few days, about 80 per cent of the people in the United States, having looked at what was on the table, the clothes they were wearing and the places they were living had come to the conclusion Mr. Roosevelt must have been talking about them.

Old-Fashioned?

There's a sense of real competition as spelling champions are being chosen in school districts in preparation for the Salem News - East Liverpool Review sponsored county bee at Lisbon April 25.

Dictionaries, word lists and definitions are being studied as never before. It's exciting, but best of all, educational.

All of the contestants won't win but all probably will admit later in life that the bees helped to improve their spelling and thus prepared them for higher education and the competitive pursuits in this world of ours. Spelling bees may be old-fashioned, traditionally, but they are ever modern in the light of their usefulness.

Children At Play

Spring vacation started today for all Salem public school pupils.

So drive cautiously, Mr. Motorist. Most of the boys and girls will be out playing. Sidewalks become playgrounds in many instances, so be on the alert for a small child impulsively dashing into the street. We want all of our children back in classes when the school doors re-open April 18.

Once Over

Is Frank Sinatra the boy to handle a movie wide open for low punches at Ike Eisenhower and his high officers in bloodiest battles against Nazi hordes? Is he the fellow to make sure his writer of "Execution of Pvt. Slovik" doesn't create more sympathy for a GI who made a hobby of desertion than for heroes dead under white crosses or crippled in wheelchairs?

Slovik was executed, under approval of Ike. The death sentence came only after repeated runouts from comrades. Slovik was drafted despite his wife and kid and got some raw breaks before he reached the front.

Some pity for him is natural. But the movie had been brushed off by Hollywood producers for years in realization it would be a delicate job to handle without giving the wrong slant on the armed services, hurting recruitments and being unfair to Ike.

Eisenhower approved execution only after long patience with repeated desertions when thousands were sticking it out and going to their deaths. Slovik's repeated escapes from drastic punishment had become army gossip leading to this frequent question on the combat line "Why go out there and die, if you can pull out and get nothing worse than a few months in the house?"

The fear is that the Sinatra production, under Commie authorship, may brush this off or lose it in a fog of curious approaches.

Private Slovik's execution could and did arouse pity. Gen. Eisenhower felt it deeply. But how about pity for the tens of thousands of servicemen who "stood and took it"? Will this autocratic ex-crooner and movie actor pay up there.

Street Repairs

At this time of the year, and particularly this season, everyone is complaining about the condition of city streets and township roads. Pictures in Saturday's News of two thoroughfares were typical of the many that are bumpy and pock-marked, showing the effects of winter and the spring thaw.

Some of Salem's streets are in pretty bad shape. Some are in such poor condition that motorists purposely avoid them. The people who live along them can not.

Some of these streets have deteriorated over the years, not just during the past six or seven months and it will take more funds than the city normally gets from tax revenues to put all city streets in top condition. In the meantime, street maintenance will be patching and more patching because the city has no special levy to finance a good street program.

Chick who won title of "Miss World of 1960" is in U.S. Should be accompanied by a press agent who won title of "Mister Slight Exaggeration."

Believe it or not the story of the theater is that of Guy Bolton. He had three shows at a time on Broadway 30 or 35 years ago, was top musical comedy man in the 20s but faded out over a long period. Now in his seventies he has staged a comeback and has musicals under way in New York, Paris and London.

Champs By The Dozen!

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

A goon squad crashed into the Havana Palacio de Los Trabajadores—which is nice Spanish for labor temple—the other day.

As usual, the Communists were working with the underworld. Their muscle men slugged their way up the stairs of the headquarters of Cuba's national labor federation, the CTC.

As the sluggers' brass knuckled fists rattled the heads of the staff, they also shook up our world.

The invasion was one of the unnoticed, methodical and inexorable chess moves of power ordered by the mixed Russian and Chinese undercover military commission now expertly turning Cuba into an off-shore Soviet satellite.

It is Romania and Czechoslovakia all over again just a half-hour from our mainland.

SOVIET ORDERS are to take over the labor movement swiftly, because the few anti-Communist unions are really the only cadres of organized power left in the "opposition." They represent what little independent strength Fidel Castro has.

Front man for "operation takeover" is the tough, disciplined Communist Textile Union chief, Jesus Soto. It was his "unity committee" which sent the goon squads into the labor palace.

Senior Soto soon will be the Cuban labor strong man—officially. He was merely wiping out the few men who were on the path to this glory of his when his men went in the palace.

Those particular men in this case, are the leaders of the Cuban construction unions. Some of them are anti-Communist. Some are those who take their Marxism seriously and whimsically believe they have the right to their own policies.

Recently Soto looked at his calendar and decided the time had come for these nonconformists to go. So, as director of organization of the national CTC, Soto simply ruled them out of office. He set a new election for April 10.

Soto is a perfectionist. He set the election and his men were going to count the ballots.

The "ins" who had been ruled out, objected.

This angered Soto. His opponents just didn't understand democratic centralism. This time he made certain the "ins" would be out—physically. His goon squads defined democratic centralism with their fists.

THE OPPONENTS went to the national labor leader, the supposed No. 2 man, David Salvador. He is pro-Communist now but not of the inner cadre. His friend is Fidel. And David went to him.

But Soto's friend is Paul Castro of the inner cadre. Soto's goons stayed in the labor palace to count the votes. Fidel was silent.

Soto, allegedly the No. 2 man, had vetoed Salvador, allegedly the No. 1 man.

Thus another bloc of labor was added to the Soviet group already under Russian-Chinese military discipline. Typical of those who had been in and outed were the Tobacco Workers. Once again Soto used the Communist technique. He was ordered to take over that union.

He decided first to seize the big Havana local. After that everything was paper work.

So without consulting the national executive board of the Tobacco Union, Soto called a meeting of The Havana Tobacco Workers in a small hall. A few showed up.

Soto announced that their leaders were guilty of the full run of political diseases. They were out. The handful of "workers" said, "si, si."

THE NEXT DAY, Luis Moreno, the non-Communist national Tobacco Workers Union chief, asked Soto how he could do this without consulting the national leadership to inform them of any irregularities. What right did Soto have to call an illegal meeting of a minority of members, remove the locals legally elected executive committee and "insult the many members of the union" who had fought in the July 26 army of the glorious revolution.

Senior Moreno got his answer. He, himself, was kicked out by Soto. So when you read of the proletariat shouting in the streets against the United States, you'll know who's at their back.

Do Candidates Practice What They Preach?

Do the various candidates who aspire to the presidency really practice what they preach? This is a question raised by a reader who feels that since free speech is being rather broadly interpreted now—any time the Supreme Court to include the distribution of anonymous handbills, a citizen has the right to direct a few anonymous queries to the candidates.

From a reader in a city in Michigan come these three questions:

"Do the children of the candidates invite playmates into their homes regardless of race, creed or color?"

"Do these candidates entertain Negroes in their homes at the same time and on the same level as their white friends?"

"In other words, do they practice what they preach?"

The letter then goes on to discuss the background against which the questions are asked:

"I want to be sure that my vote will not help put a man in office who is secretly dedicated to wrecking my way of life. I resent anyone trying to tell me the person or persons I should associate with just because the courts say he is my social equal. I have always been the judge of that, and I want to go on being the judge of it. I cannot vote for anyone who says I am not."

"I am enclosing an article from one of our newspapers which points up what 'civil rights' have brought to us in Michigan."

"I refer to the case against some motel owners who have been declared by the office of the state attorney general to be 'in violation' of the state's 'civil rights' statutes. Under this ruling, the State Tourists Council has notified the West Michigan Tourists and Resort Assn. that it will not distribute the booklets of that association or its annual guide if they carry the listing of the persons who are accused of violating the statutes."

The clipping, which was from an article in the Grand Rapids "Press," says:

"This has amounted to making the West Michigan Association on the punitive 'club' to carry out the ruling of the attorney general."

"Members of the executive committee of the West Michigan Tourist and Resort Assn. feel very strongly that it is American principle that no person may be deemed guilty without his day in court."

This the defendants have not had. No complaint to the attorney general's office has brought suit and the attorney general's office has arbitrarily declared them to be 'in violation' without a court hearing of any kind."

THE MICHIGAN reader's letter continues: "My understanding is that the only 'crime' these people committed was circulating calendars with a Negro's picture on them, the same having been ordered before the state's 'civil rights' bill was passed."

"We, too, own a motel and according to our 'civil rights' laws, if a Negro comes in and we are full up and cannot give him a room, he can go away and report us as having refused him."

We can then be held 'in violation' without any complaint being lodged against us or without our even knowing that we have been reported. We would have no opportunity to present our side. The penalty is a $10,000 fine or one year in jail, or both. So, you see, we have no 'civil rights.'"

"As you will note, the court has been asked to allow any interested parties to intervene but I am sure none will. Public opinion is so much against us that no one dares raise his voice. I must ask you, if you should see fit to use any part of this letter or the clipping, not to make my name public. It could ruin our business. We could be picketed or have a sit-down demonstration and we would have no redress."

"We've always held our standards high in our motel. Yet now Negroes come in and they sit outside and shout back and forth, play ball or do anything to attract attention, while white people drive past without stopping and then our motel stands half empty. So, you see, the problem is economic as well as social. Again I ask where are our 'civil rights'?"

"We are elderly people. We have put our life's savings in this motel. If we lose it because of racial trouble, we are too old to start over."

THE FOREGOING is similar to many other letters that have been received in which people express the opinion that social customs are private customs and that every business should have the right to select its own customers.

Former President Harry Truman, commenting on the "sit-in" demonstrations, has publicly stated that "if someone came into my store and tried to stop business, I'd throw him out." Boycotts have been undertaken as a means of intimidating individuals who believe they have a right to run their own business.

The problem is not confined to the South. Mail received by this correspondent indicates that there are plenty of instances in northern cities where the "civil rights" issue now has become an agitation for the invasion of private rights.

Soviet Succession

By BERNARD KAPLAN

Nikita Khrushchev told French President Charles de Gaulle that he has taken steps to insure an orderly succession to power in Russia following his retirement or death.

According to reliable Paris sources, Khrushchev told De Gaulle in the course of their private talks that the Soviet Union will never again face the dangers of a disorderly interregnum and even civil war as it did following the death of Stalin.

Khrushchev referred to the steps he has taken to guarantee continuity of the regime as among the most important of his actions to "regularize" life in the USSR.

Informants said the Soviet leader apparently was trying to impress De Gaulle with the fact that Soviet rule is no longer revolutionary, no longer dependent on hidden forces but is completely stable and "legitimate."

He may also have been discreetly chiding De Gaulle since the question of the succession in France when the latter leaves the scene is one of the nation's greatest worries.

KHRUSHCHEV'S disclosures interest diplomats for several reasons, not the least of them his reference to the possibility of his "retirement" at some unspecified future date.

The Soviet chieftain appears to be facing up to the consequences of his age—he is now 66—and may have taken a malicious delight in doing so in the company of De Gaulle who is nearly four years his senior.

But it is also indisputable that he showed the marked effects of his recent bout of influenza. He seems to have had a harder time than usual snapping back from this illness and awareness of this may have set him thinking about the future.

The chairman of the Paris Municipal Council, Pierre Devaigine, who also is a practicing physician of note, said after meeting the Soviet leader and spending some time with him that he almost certainly is afflicted with high blood pressure and is obviously very overweight for a man of his age.

Khrushchev told De Gaulle that on his departure from the Soviet scene power would pass to an "executive" committee of the Presidium among whom Anastas Mikoyan, as senior party member, would be the recognized "acting chairman."

THIS WOULD NOT mean that Mikoyan had been selected as Khrushchev's successor but merely that he would head the group which—under the guidance of the Supreme Soviet, according to Khrushchev—would "allot" the areas of authority to be assumed by the various recognized leaders of the party and the government.

Among other members of this top committee, he mentioned First Deputy Premier Frol Kozlov and Nikolai Ivanov, now No. 2 to Khrushchev in the party secretariat.

Khrushchev reportedly offered no evidence of how, from the grave or from a retired leader's dacha in the country, he could insure that this plan would work out in practice.

De Gaulle is understood to have interposed with the comment that "committees" had in fact taken over following the deaths of Lenin and Stalin but without success.

Favors W. State Overpass

I think we could save ourselves some valuable time and a lot of inconvenience if we had an overpass on West State St. at the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks.

It is not unusual to have our main street crossing blocked many times during the day and week, making people late for work and sometimes working hardships on people when time is most valuable.

I think an overpass or an underpass on W. State St. would be a real improvement for our town.

peared unlikely he could attend the conference of Commonwealth prime ministers in London next month.

Heated passions aroused by the assassination attempt brought pleas for calmness in the nation ridden by racial strife for the last three weeks.

Only scattered violence was averted over the weekend. At Veeplaars, a small Negro settlement near Port Elizabeth, a wooden church burned to the ground and arson was suspected. It was the third church burned in the area.

While thousands prayed for the recovery of Verwoerd at church services Sunday, government forces kept up raids on Negro settlements.

Special precautions were taken for the arraignment of Verwoerd's white assailant, David Pratt, 52, as investigators sought to determine what motivated his attack.

There has been no indication Pratt had any accomplices, but detectives search several homes in the Johannesburg area in connection with the shooting. One friend said Pratt "hates Nationalists, and Verwoerd is nationalist No. 1."

Other friends of Pratt, a gentleman farmer, said he had shown no political leanings and described him as "a nice, courteous and very generous man."

The Doctor Says

By HAROLD THOMAS HYMAN, M.D.

Hobbies Enliven Retirement Years

The recent columns on retirement have aroused so much reader interest I thought you'd enjoy excerpts from two of the most fascinating of the many letters I received on the subject.

From Augusta, Ga., Kenneth McNeill writes of his retirement after 47 years of work in "the very exacting operation" of dispatching trains, "a job that requires your undivided attention and concentration for 8 hours."

Says Mr. McNeill, "Having seen quite a few men break under the strain and go to pieces, I decided many years ago that when I was on the job to give it all I had and when my time was over to completely forget the railroad."

"In order to do this, it was necessary to develop an interest in many other things. I took up hunting and fishing, gardening, flowers, carpentry, painting and other things too numerous to mention. I have always been an avid reader and spend several hours a day reading.

"BY GIVING TO your hobbies the concentration and attention you give to your job," he concludes, "a man can become quite expert. He will find the more he learns the more there is to learn. Since my retirement I have not had a dull moment."

"I am not a writer and it is hard to express just what I want to say but my advice to anyone would be to try anything and keep trying until you find several things you are interested in and concentrate on them."

"Do this many years before your retirement age. When you are on the job, give it everything you've got. . . . Your employer is paying you, so give him a little extra service. . . .

"But when you leave the office, forget it completely until you go to work again. It can be done as I did it and when time for retirement comes, you will look forward to it instead of dreading it."

FROM THE distaff side, this is how Mrs. L. Philip Newbaker of Garrison-on-Hudson, N.Y., helped her husband anticipate his retirement.

"What is wrong with studying some musical instrument?" she asks. "It is one of the greatest outlets in the world for many. A lesson a week is not a (great) expense."

"Many good people have stored away an instrument that some one in the family has discarded and most pawnshops have used instruments that can be purchased at a reasonable price."

"For years," Mrs. Newbaker relates, "my husband has wanted to play a bass violin. . . . Last June he began. I cannot tell you the satisfaction he has had. Every night he practices 45 minutes and takes a lesson a week."

"HE NOW CAN join in on some things with piano or accordion, both of which I play, and over the Christmas season played the carols with a group of adults and children at a party. . . . He has taken some ribbing but more praise and admiration from his friends. As he says, 'It's one of the greatest things that has happened to me.'"

Mrs. Newbaker concludes her letter with the statement that the study or learning of music represents a challenge which results in mental exercise and stimulation that is not brought about by more sedentary pursuits such as reading or listening."

May I express thanks to Mr. McNeill and Mrs. Newbaker for all of you and on my own behalf?

Ann Landers

ANSWERS YOUR PROBLEMS

Dear Ann Landers: Please answer in the paper. It's about time this matter was aired publicly. Why is it that people who smoke have no consideration for people who don't use tobacco and find the smell of smoke offensive — if not sickening?

Today smokers seem to take over everywhere. They crawl into your car with a cigarette, walk into an elevator with a cigar and light up and puff away in your home as well as blow smoke in your face at the office.

My husband and I do not smoke and neither do our children. There are no ash trays in our living room — by design. An friend who visited us recently lit a cigar and licked the ashes in his pants cuff. You'd think that when people see no ash trays around they'd take the hint.

How do you feel about this? — A THINKING MAN.

Dear Thinking: Not as vehemently as you. I don't smoke and I never did — but I have ash trays in my home for people who do.

Considerate people are courteous. They always ask for permission to light up when in the presence of nonsmokers. When they see no ash trays they should take the hint and abstain.

If smoke bothers you, you have the right to say so. If the addict is so far gone that he must have a weed, he should excuse himself.

Adopted Trouble

Dear Ann: I raised my sister's daughter, Peggy, when her parents were both killed in an accident. My own three daughters married nice boys and are very content. Peggy is 27, still with me and raising more trouble than my three girls put together.

For three years she's been going with a boy 22 — off and on — mostly off. He doesn't show up for dates and she spends most of her time phoning taverns looking for him.

Several weeks ago she met a man 31, who is much more sensible than Frank. When Frank found out about this he went to pieces. He begged for another chance. She's thinking of giving him a year's trial.

I'm very eager for her to break up with Frank but I'm afraid to say anything for fear she'll do just the opposite. What do you think? — T.A.

Dear T.A.: Peggy sounds like a case of arrested development. A boy 22 is too young for a girl 27.

You are wise to say nothing. I sincerely hope she can hold the 31-year-old's interest and that she'll give Frank the gate. He sounds irresponsible.

No Cuteness to Spare

Dear Ann: My mother has it in for a fellow I correspond with just because he writes cute things on the envelope. I think she is being very unfair to judge him by this one thing.

She never has met the guy, yet she tells me he is brainless. Why can't parents realize that things are different today than when they were growing up? When my mother was a young girl I'll bet the mail came by Pony Express. Will you please set her straight before she ruins my life — N.A.N.?

Dear Nan: It is and always was in bad taste to write cute things on the outside of an envelope. Tell your boy friend to save the bright saying for the letter — where he can probably use 'em.

Dear Ann Landers: It was most unbecoming of you to "chop down" the writer who signed himself "Gentleman Observer." He criticized America for her lack of culture and made a strong case for his position.

Anyone who has watched American television for two nights in a row knows he is right. American TV caters to the morons. Compared to TV in Moscow, Budapest and Peiping, American TV is embarrassingly amateurish.

It was a disgrace the way you hopped all over this man. If America is a free country, as you claim, why shouldn't he have his say? — NO FLAG WAYER.

Dear No Flag Wayer: Well — another country heard from!

And judging from the cities you cite as the ultimate in TV entertainment, I think I know WHICH country.

Look, Brother, the fact that you read "Gentleman Observer's" letter in the American press is pretty good evidence that this is a free country. That letter appeared in 368 papers with a circulation of about 35 million. I'm also printing your letter, so you're having your say, too.

Try to get this treatment in Moscow, Budapest or Peiping and let me know how you make out. (I'll bake you a cake with a saw in it.)

Pros And Cons

Dear Ann: I am so angry at "Gentleman Observer" I can hardly ly write. I came to America 40 months ago. When I landed on your shores I got on my knees and kissed the soil. I feel like shouting from the housetops that this is a marvelous, new, exciting country and I am privileged and honored to be among you. — N SUN KEE.

Dear Ann: Hooray for "Gentleman Observer" and phooey to you! I came to this crummy country 14 years ago. I didn't come here to escape tyranny or persecution either. I was perfectly happy where I was.

Too bad I didn't have the sense to stay there.

I was one of those silly girls who fell for the cheap line of an American soldier. You told "Gentleman Observer" if he didn't like it here to go back where he came from. I wish you'd make me the same offer — and buy me a ticket — I'd grab the chance. — SICK OF EVERYONE.

Dear Sick: Buy your own ticket. Just because you made a poor selection is no reason to be mad at the entire country. You could have made a bum choice over there, too, Toots.

Proud Citizen

Dear Ann: I came to America with one suit of clothes and $11 in my pocket. I was undernourished and my nerves were shot because I had spent 10 months hiding from Storm Troopers. My parents and uncles were killed before my very eyes.

America gave me hope, strength and a chance to stand up and hold my head high. I hope you will forgive the ignorance of the man who signed himself "Gentleman Observer." Not all adopted sons and daughters are boorish and ungrateful. We are ashamed of this type who bites the hand that feeds him. — PROUD CITIZEN.

Dear Ann: Of all the stupid chauvinistic answers — yours was the prize. Why don't you read "The Ugly American"? I'll bet you wouldn't tell Einstein or von Braun that planes and ships leave every day. How would you dumbbells compete with the Russians? — INNER NOS.

Dear Ann: I dig America the most. Where else in the world could a haberdasher become president? — NYU STUDENT.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of The Salem News, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Hallowed House

Widow's House Is Site of Secret Rendezvous

(Editor's note: Stout hearted allies provided sanctuary while the storm rose about Jesus during His final days in Jerusalem. The home of the widow Mary of Cyprus, according to early Christian sources, was a retreat for Jesus and His disciples, and the site of the Last Supper. This is the first of a five-part Easter series recreating the turbulent events that swirled about "The Hallowed House.")

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
AP Religion Writer

It was a pleasant, stately abode.
It stood in the aristocratic upper city on the western rise of Jerusalem. But its handsome, tranquil exterior masked a dire secret.

The house was a hideaway of the inflammatory Galilean, a haven of the Master and His men.

Mary bath-Nabas, the wealthy, hospitable widow who owned it, knew full well the danger and dis-repute she risked in sheltering that rustic crew, outlanders who defied the authorities and stirred up the crowds.

Yet she did it resolutely, and with a burning heart.

It was the 13th of the spring month of Nisan, the day before the eve of Passover, and she moved about the guest chambers and galleries directing Rhoda and her other servants in preparations for the festival.

But her own holiday spirits were muted by a sense of tension and foreboding. The agitation aroused by Jesus in the market place and Temple courts, His cutting rebukes to Sadducean officials, could not continue unavenged.

He Avoided Reprisals

Thus far, reprisals doubtless had been prevented only by His sway over large numbers of the populace in the day, particularly the barefoot swarms from the Akra, and at night, by His covert seclusion.

How long could He walk this narrow ledge, unfalling? The widow paused to straighten a fresh-hung drapery at the door of the atrium, or main hall. How long before her own role was found out, and denounced?

That part did not matter so much, except on account of her son, John Mark. She bit her lip, and hurried on down a corridor toward the rear of the house.

Few among her genteel associates knew that she was a supporter of the roaming carpenter of Nazareth. Nor was this dignified neighborhood of magistrates, priests and rich merchants aware that she gave refuge to the disturbers.

There may have been some gossip or suspicions. She had noticed a group of closely cowl-ed scribes watching her gateway from across the street. But of interference, not yet.

They Came in Darkness

The clandestine visitors came only in late darkness, slipping in unobserved.

And she had been prudent. She had cautioned the Galilean women staying there for the week—Jesus' mother, Mary, her sister, Salome, Mary of Magdala and others—to beware of prying peddlers.

In the larder, they and the servants worked at scouring the ordinary utensils, storing them away, and polishing the special Passover dishes for use. Others kneaded and rolled unleavened wheat dough for the matzos.

Some were already in the brick

The Site of the Last Supper Was a Stately House on the Western Rise of Jerusalem.

oven. Mary checked to make sure they were perforated so they would not swell, and that the fire was low, for slow baking.

But the activity did not still her worries, nor erase her fears.

Her brother, Joseph bar-Nabas, had amply warned her that she, her son, her whole household might face arrest, stomping mobs or other harsh consequences if she persisted in her alliance, and it was discovered. Already the Galilean and His band had been threatened with stoning on several occasions. The matter had come to a crisis when Jesus grabbed a whip from a Temple guard, overturned the shekel tables and drove out the attendants.

Could She Continue?

Could she, in duty to her son, concoct any further with this rebel lot? Could she place her son's life in jeopardy, along with her own?

The widow had come to love
Jerusalem, with its aura of reverence and high principle, perhaps even more than those born and reared here, those who had never known directly the merciless crudities of paganism that prevailed elsewhere.

Both she and her brother had grown up on the island of Cyprus, with its lavish Greek forums and theaters, its rare wines, its infanticide and self-mutilating frenzies of devotees to Adonis and Astarte.

She had left there as the bride of a prosperous man of Jerusalem.
On his death, he had bequeathed to her this spacious, two-story house, and much goods besides.

Her brother owned another large house, in the same favored quarter, purchased for him by their father, so that he might enjoy the full rights of a Judean while studying at the feet of the great rabbis.

Thoughts of the Brother

Her involvement in the Galilean movement might dishonor him as well.

Mary made her way back through the house. The scent of jasmine came from the censers.
She nodded with tau-faced approval at the newly brushed Persian hangings on the walls, and placement of clean carpets in the vestibule.

Outside, workmen applied new whitewash to the limestone walls and stairs. The courtyard was neat and serene, with its aging sycamore, its laurel-lined walks, its stone archways, and plots of heliotrope. A fountain trickled softly in a pool.

It reminded Mary that she would need new, spring water for mixing of the Passover wine. She told her steward who sent a servant to fetch it. Mary watched her son, Mark, as he shined the bronzed lanterns at the outer gate.

Later, as the sun sank toward the 12th hour of day, she was summoned to the foregate. The servant had returned with the jars of water, and with him had come two of Jesus' men, Peter and John.

Mary felt her breath leave her.

One of them spoke, "The Master saith unto thee, 'Where is the guest chamber that I shall eat the Passover with my disciples?'"

They were coarsely garbed fishermen, with leather skins, heavy lowland accents of Galilee and the look of hard toil, dust and outdoor living about them.

Jesus' Request

Mary's gaze flicked back and forth between them. Until now, the Galileans had not dared come here except under cover of night.
And for some disquieting reason,
Jesus wanted a seder served a day in advance.

She glanced up, and saw her son, Mark, still rubbing at the lanterns. She loved him with all her heart. Her hands moved aimlessly and one of them touched the mezuzah on the right door-post.

"Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart," read the tiny scroll inside the wooden case,
"and with all thy soul and with all thy might." She put a hand to her brow, remembering the hard but tender, wise face of Jesus, feeling His touch, hearing his words.

"Foxes have holes, and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of Man hath not where to lay his head." But he must have, he must.

"Bo, merea, bo!" she said.

"Come, friends, come." She lifted her skirts and climbed the stairs to show them the way to the upper room.

Police Seek Slayer Of Hotel Manager

CLEVELAND (AP) — Cleveland police are seeking a man who fatally wounded the manager of an East Side hotel when the manager challenged him at the hotel entrance.

The victim, Fletcher Evans, 33, died about three hours after the shooting Sunday.

Detectives gave this account:

Evans, his brother, Jerrell, 35, and two other men were chatting in the office when a man about 32, wearing a gray topcoat, entered.

"Where do you think you're going?" Evans asked as the stranger walked by.

"Up to my room," the man answered.

"What room?" Evans asked.

The man then produced a .38-caliber revolver, slugged Jerrell, breaking his jaw, and fired at Fletcher, who was telephoning police.

Then he fled, evading the other two men.

"Offspring" comes from the Anglo-Saxon word "ofspring," which means "to spring or descend from."
